

Renaming a Website

Select the "Code" tab in your website design software (Frontpage, Dreamweaver, etc). In the first few lines of code (between the <head> and </head> tags) you will find a line of text that reads:

<title>new page</title>

Select "New Page 1" or whatever automatic text the web design software places in there. Replace it with your own text, such as your name or the title of the page.

```
1 <html>
2
3 <head>
4 <meta http-equiv="Content-Language" content="en-us">
5 <meta http-equiv="Content-Type" content="text/html; charset=windows-1252">
6 <title>New Page 1</title>
7 </head>
8
9 <body>
10
```

The text "New Page 1" in line 6 is highlighted in blue.
